

CASE STUDY: HELLER MACHINE TOOLS

Petros PACE Finance Helps Manufacturer Lower Energy Costs by 23%

Project Highlights

Industrial Facility Troy, Michigan

93,324 SF | Built in 1995

THE CLIENT

HELLER Machine Tools is a global manufacturer founded in Germany in 1894. The owner of one of the largest manufacturing facilities in Troy, MI, HELLER is a leading supplier to a variety of industries including automotive manufacturers and suppliers and aerospace companies.

THE CHALLENGE

HELLER needed to make costly upgrades to its 20-year-old facility. Preferring to use their internal capital for core operations, HELLER executives pursued alternative sources of financing.

THE NEEDS

- Efficient lighting with controls
- Compressed air upgrades
- Server room cooling
- HVAC upgrades with controls
- Partial roof replacement

THE SOLUTION

C-PACE financing enabled the $979,000 deep energy retrofit without requiring any out-of-pocket expenses.

THE RESULTS

- HELLER became the first manufacturing facility in Michigan to use C-PACE financing.
- HELLER expects to reduce energy consumption and related costs by 23%.
- The savings generated by efficiency upgrades will free up operating capital to deploy in HELLER's core manufacturing business.

THE PARTNERS

“As a global company, we recognize the positive environmental impact we can have by retrofitting our facilities with energy-efficient upgrades. When ABM Building Solutions brought this new PACE tool to our attention and introduced us to Petros PACE Finance, we were happy to learn that our substantial retrofit project could take place without a large outlay of operating capital. It was an easy decision.”
